

Chingampijigs.

If we learn that the new Breckinridge orange at Cincinnati will be issued next week. It will be called the Morning Courier, and will be under the editorial charge of ex-Auditor Morgan, with an efficient corps of assistants. The Enquirer will find in the Courier a formidable competitor for the patronage of the Democracy, and a lively time may be anticipated.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO. are the agents for the "Chief," and the most influential and largest circulating Newspapers in the United States and the Canadas. They are authorized to represent the Douglass.

17 Douglas's nomination is one of the signs of the times.

The Charleston Mercury proposes to the owners of the Great Eastern to go into the slave trade. "Ten thousand negroes at a trip—only think of it!" The Mercury's imagination is up to fever heat.

A Douglas ratification meeting was attempted in Savannah, Georgia on Tuesday evening.

The nominee for Vice President was greeted with hisses when he made his speech.

Some consolation to the Douglass clique hereabouts may be derived from the knowledge that four of the seven Members of the House from Missouri have declared for Douglas, so that, should he by any chance get into the House he will have two States in that body—each of them by a majority of one.

17 Frank Pierce has a forboding of the result, and says that he counsels united action on the part of all Conservatives and relies especially on Pennsylvania to defeat Lincoln. But there is much less reliance to be placed in Pennsylvania than upon New York for this purpose.

The Douglass men there, rather than promote the election of Breckinridge and Lane, may, in considerable numbers, go for Lincoln.
